IBCCI NextGen Visionary Speaks

Based in Mumbai, I am involved in pioneering entrepreneurship in the health-tech sector. I have the privilege of leading two innovative ventures:

ROUTE TO SMILE: A startup that leverages advanced technology to manufacture Clear Aligners, a modern, removable, and transparent alternative to metal braces, supporting surgeons in planning complex surgeries.

DENTAL STACK: A tech company dedicated to developing a patented IoT solution and enterprise-level software aimed at addressing challenges within the dental ecosystem.

What has been your motivation or reason to start your own business?

As a Chartered Accountant with a keen interest in diverse fields, I always wanted to apply my skills beyond finance. My motivation for starting my own businesses stemmed from a desire to embrace a multidisciplinary approach and the responsibility that entrepreneurship entails. It's about more than just theoretical knowledge; it's about understanding customer needs, mastering sales, people management, and leading effectively. The practical experience gained from these endeavors has been unparalleled and immensely fulfilling.

What have been your major learnings from being an entrepreneur?

One of my biggest learnings is the power of asking for what you want. Whether it's seeking referrals from customers or reaching out to potential mentors, being proactive has been key. Genuine intentions often yield positive outcomes, even from unfamiliar quarters. It's a mindset that opens doors to opportunities.

What challenges have you faced along the way?

Hiring the right team members has been a significant challenge, especially for critical roles. Finding the right fit is crucial for the success and growth of any venture. Additionally, navigating the complexities of dealing with multiple stakeholders, both internal and external, presents ongoing challenges. However, maintaining a solution-oriented mindset helps in overcoming these hurdles.

Any final remarks to budding entrepreneurs who may be reading this?

There are abundant opportunities in areas where societal needs aren't being fully met. The cost of starting a business has never been lower, and the support ecosystem is stronger than ever. My advice is to focus on developing innovative products and services that add genuine value to society.

Here's a quote from my favourite book, "Shoe Dog" by Nike's co-founder:

"We wanted, as all great business do, to create, to contribute, and we dared to say so aloud. When you make something, when you improve something, when you deliver something, when you add some new thing or service to the life of strangers, making them happier, or healthier, or safer, or better, and when you do it all crisply and efficiently, smartly, the way everything should be done but so seldom is—you're participating more fully in the whole grand human drama. More than simply alive, you're helping other to live more fully, and if that's business, all right, call me a businessman."

I'm always eager to assist others on their entrepreneurial journey. Feel free to reach out to me at +91-90042 68084 for any business inquiries or mentorship opportunities.
